Dear colleague,

Our conference title is Relational Perspectives on Attachment Theory and Psychoanalytic Process. The Relational Perspective, derived from British Object Relational Theory, Interpersonal Theory, and theory emerging from clinical experience, provides a large umbrella for diverse conceptions about human interchanges. Attachment theory, derived from Bowlby's Evolutionary Theory and supported by extensive research, provides a compelling picture of dyadic relations centering on the striving for security. Our conference asks the exciting question: What does each theory have to offer the other? What are overlaps, similarities, and differences (Panel 1)? Since both the Relational Perspective and Attachment Theory have immediate application to clinical work, can we discern synergy in their use for treating a wide range of patients (Panel 2), and especially those who have suffered traumatizing experiences (Panel 3). In addition there will be paper sessions and a variety of workshops.

I invite you to share in the spirit of inquiry our panelists will present. I especially urge you to make your own voice heard in one of the post-panel workshop/discussion groups that will follow the completion of the panels. We have structured the conference to have short panel presentations and lively direct interchanges.

We will provide three all day master class pre-conference workshops. One will offer an opportunity to trace the findings and development of attachment theory and its important origins in Baltimore. Another will investigate particular aspects of the Relational Perspective. A third will consider the relationship between theory and interventions.

The conference will end with an integrative plenary designed to explore questions raised in the post-panel workshops and to tackle our main question: What synergy is possible between Attachment Theory and the Relational Perspective?

All this and the delights of Baltimore's wonderful harbor area, aquarium, great museums, and restaurants. Don't miss the program, the companionship, and the crab cakes.

Cordially yours,

Joseph Lichtenberg, MD, Chair, Baltimore Conference

CONTINUING EDUCATION and EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this program, participants will be able to define and evaluate the links between Relational Theories and Attachment Theory in clinical practice as well as recognize their implications with respect to the larger issues of Society and Spirit.

This conference is intended for psychoanalysts, psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, psychiatric nurses, marriage and family counselors, and clinical professional counselors. The conference is organized to facilitate maximum opportunity for questions, comments and dialogue between the audience and the presenters, allowing clinicians to engage in an extensive variety of topics relevant to the field.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of the conference, participants will be able to:

- Summarize the relationship between a Relational Perspective and Attachment Theory and be able to identify at least one area of similarity and one area of dissimilarity.
- Describe at least one aspect of what each theory contributes to our ordinary clinical work.
- Describe at least one aspect of what each theory contributes to our clinical work with very troubled traumatized patients.
- Recognize at least one aspect of each theory which opens the other to reconsideration and augmentation.
- Describe the synergy that develops as each theory is brought under consideration in conjunction with the other.

At the conclusion of Pre-Conference Master Class A, participants will be able to describe three of the basic principles that illuminate the theory and practice of the relational perspective. At the conclusion of Pre-Conference Master Class B, participants will be able to identify at least two of the principal theorists and researchers who developed attachment theory and describe their contributions. At the conclusion of Pre-Conference Master Class C, participants will be able to identify how at least two aspects of attachment theory and two aspects of relational theories can be made operational in clinical practice.

ACCREDITATION

This program is sponsored by the International Association for Relational Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy (IARPP) and the Institute of Contemporary Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis (ICP&P).

ICP&P is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists. ICP&P maintains responsibility for the program and its content.

These continuing education credits meet the ANCC approval standards for nurses. CE credit will be available to social workers pending approval for conference by NASW.

Continuing Education Hours will be awarded as follows:

Thursday Optional Master Class = 6 Hours

Main Conference Program (Thursday Evening - Sunday) = 19 Hours

Total Conference = 25 Hours
